

2010 Champions in Women's Health Awards Call for Nominations Due Friday, October 16, 2009

The Wisconsin Women's Health Foundation (WWHF) is currently seeking nominations of individuals (male or female) who have demonstrated exemplary leadership in improving the quality of life for Wisconsin women and families in the following women's health areas:

- Cancer
- Cardiovascular Disease
- Domestic Abuse
- Mental Illness
- Osteoporosis
- Tobacco & Alcohol Cessation
- Rural Women's Health
- General Women's Health

Nominees may include consumer advocates, volunteers, health care professionals, non-profit employees, or individuals who have overcome a significant health issue and/or have inspired other women to become advocates for their own health. Past champions honored have raised the level of awareness about women's health issues; expanded the base of knowledge about women's health through community service and professional achievement; and/or impacted the quality of care that Wisconsin women receive.

NOMINATION REQUIREMENTS

- Complete and return the Nominee Information Cover Sheet.
- Describe, in 500 words or less, how the individual has demonstrated leadership in improving the quality of life for women and families in a particular area of women's health. Include a minimum of two, maximum of three supporting documents such as letters of support, news articles or photographs.
- Past winners are not eligible for nomination; however, nominations will be kept active and on file for two years.
- Include 6 copies of the entire application including all supplemental materials (8.5 x 11).

AWARDS CEREMONY

On Friday, April 30, 2010, WWHF Founder and President Sue Ann Thompson, and her husband, Former U.S. Secretary Tommy Thompson, will present the Champions in Women's Health Awards at a private reception.

Recipients of the Champion in Women's Health Award will also be asked to attend the Wisconsin Women's Health Foundation's 11th Annual Spring Gala on the evening of Saturday, May 1, 2010. Champions will enjoy an elegant evening of live music, dancing, gourmet food, wine and champagne in our beautiful State Capitol Rotunda from 8:00pm to midnight. They will also be introduced to the attendees of the Spring Gala during a short program.

Champions will receive two tickets to the Spring Gala and may be recognized throughout the state in newspapers, magazines and other media.
